Good and bad arguments - Acrewoods home

The only thing that cannot happen is for a deductive argument to have true premises and a valid inference but a false conclusion. Some logicians designate the combination of true premises and a valid inference as a sound argument; it is a piece of reasoning whose conclusion must be true. The trouble with every other case is that it gets us nowhere, since either at least one of the premises is ...

You can make an argument [that] the company should have known better and been doing it differently; while in other situations it's not as clear, and you could reach a different interpretation.

Home The Argument

What Is an Argument? An argument is not the same thing as a quarrel. The goal of an argument is not to attack your opponent, or to impress your audience. The goal of an argument is to offer good reasons in support of your conclusion, reasons that all parties to your dispute can accept. Nor is an argument just the denial of what the other person says.
